"Wait, boys, wait," replied Frank, as he puffed a volume of blue amoke from his mouth.

"Now, why don't you go to the store determined to do your duty and attended to business as you should I would wildingly raise your alary, even to a thousand dollars, I don't mind the amount but F do want the monny's worth.

"Yes you are. If you did so, how long do you suppose it would take Brown to find it out!"

"Seventy-five years."

"Brown is strewd."

"No he; I have given him abundant opportunities to appreciate me."

"I have no heart to do anything Here lam, in debt for the accessaries of life, and not a five dollar bill la my pocket."

"That is your fault. Your salary is onugh to live on."

"Enough for you not for me."

"I saved a hundred last year."

"You will never gave a man a lying recommendered to the store to business as you should I would all the do business as you should I would will all the point of the mind the amount but F do want the monny's worth.

"Your friend, Joseph Long, who entered my service at the same time you did, seems to have acted on a different principle, and I value his services very highly and I am not ungrateful. Jaynes to one of the firm mon, and I shall make Joe head salesman in his place, with a salary of fifteen hondred. There is the difference between your doing business and his. He has proved himself worthy, you have not, and he will become one of his opponent was not here."

Frank sneaked off. He was ruined for Boston and decided to go West. He was even obliged to borrow money of Joseph to go those. According dinner time, in a was in the West. What he had been last year he was the was in the West. What he had been last year he was the was in the West. What he had been last year he was the was the worth.
